

Teachers...Change Your Classroom, Not Your Career!

You Mentor. You Inspire. You Teach.

You are a leader who inspires students to learn, to believe in themselves and to realize their full potential. As you help others build their future, why not take control of your own?

In these challenging economic times, thousands of teachers around the country face uncertain futures and are considering their next career move. Are you one of them? Why not transfer your skills from the classroom to your living room (or any room you choose) – to start a Mary Kay business! Teach women how to use great products that help them look and feel beautiful, and inspire them to design their personal success as well!

You've got the leadership skills and the passion. Mary Kay has great products and offers a great opportunity. Why not put it all together? Now is a great time to start a Mary Kay business!

Independent National Sales Director Betty Gilpatric: When Betty was told her teaching responsibilities were being reduced due to budget cuts, she realized, "I loved teaching, but I understood it was no longer taking me in the direction of my dreams."

Independent National Sales Director, Kendra Crist Cross: "I was being primed for my Mary Kay business with my previous career as a teacher and house parent for challenged adolescents – encouraging and mentoring were two gifts I was ready to share."
